Experience

Snowden is a Senior Manager in the Multistate group within Deloitte Tax's Washington National Tax practice. As a member of the Washington National Tax practice, he advises the firm's multistate and multinational clients on the state tax implications of federal tax legislation, corporate mergers, acquisitions, divestitures, and restructurings; the state tax implications of various business models and contractual relationships; matters of apportionment and filing methodologies; and providing controversy representation services. His controversy experience includes representing clients before state tax agencies in Alabama, Arkansas, California, Delaware, Florida, Louisiana, Minnesota, Mississippi, New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania. He also serves as a member of the firm's Jurisdictional Technical Lead program for California where he advises clients on the proper application of California tax laws.

Snowden has co-authored numerous articles published in Tax Analysts' State Tax Notes and in Bloomberg BNA's Daily Tax Report. Topics included, amongst others, U.S. Constitutional state tax issues, the state tax impact of recently issued U.S. Supreme Court opinions, state income tax conformity to federal provisions, and state income tax considerations for foreign entity taxpayers.
