DEVELOPMENTS IN INDIRECT TAX Symphony II Ballroom

12:00 Registration Opens

12:55 Welcome and Introductory Remarks

1:00 Are Data Mining and Social Media Taxes the New Gold Rush? – Bills to impose data mining, digital advertising, or social media taxes have been introduced in more than a dozen states, sometimes with the support of both political parties, and thus far have been enacted in several jurisdictions. This panel will discuss the motivations behind this surge of legislation, possible legal constraints on the authority to impose these taxes, implementation and audit implications and challenges, and whether these taxes make good policy sense. (60 Min.)

Masha Yevzelman – Shareholder, Fredrikson & Byron, P.A.

This panel will explore current developments related to the taxation of digital goods and services and discuss the lessons they have learned from their experiences to shine a light on strategies for resolving challenges in this always changing world. (60 Min.)

DEVELOPMENTS IN INDIRECT TAX (Continued)

Clark Calhoun – Partner, Alston & Bird LLP
Jennifer Jensen – Partner, PwC US Tax LLP

4:15 Expanding the Scope of Taxes on Non-Digital Service – As technology evolved in unexpected and previously unimaginable ways in recent years, indirect tax practitioners have focused on how taxes on tangible personal property might – or might not – apply to digital products. But now that the dust has largely settled on those issues, states are looking to expand their taxes to non-digital services. This panel will examine how sales and other indirect taxes are being imposed on services that were previously thought to be non-taxable, whether justified because of the new technology used to provide those services or by simply expanding the scope of taxable services. The speakers will also provide practical insight to help you understand and hold the line on these encroaching taxes. (60 Min.)

Grace Kyne – Principal, EY LLP
Eduardo Rubio – Senior Indirect Tax Manager, ADT LLC
