

DAVID W. MACHEMER, is a managing director in Ernst & Young's national indirect tax group. David concentrates his practice in state and local tax matters where he advises multistate taxpayers on the resolution of state and local tax controversies and planning opportunities in the arenas of sales and use, income, franchise, motor fuel, real property and employment taxes. Prior to EY, David was a partner in the state and local tax group of a mid-sized law Chicago law firm. David brings a unique and practical approach to solving clients' problems as a result of his prior experiences working for a large multinational financial and leasing company and also having litigated state tax cases at the Illinois Attorney General's Office.